Title: A letter to my cousin

Dear Tom,

Yesterday was the best day ever! Mom brought me to the film studio to see my favorite actor Johnny Lee. I was so excited when I got there. The first thing I saw was my favourite actor wearing an old fashioned Chinese robe and holding a sword. He was filming his new action movie.

Then, I went to get closer to him but the camera man stopped me and said, 'Kid, you can't come in here. We're filming a movie and one take costs a lot of money.' The film producer was also very angry and told me to go away.

So, the costume designer told me to come with her. She brought me to the dressing room and allowed me to dress up in Chinese clothing from the Qing Dynasty. It was so fun!

The costume designer even let me try on some of the costumes, my favorite costume was the Chinese clothing from the Qing Dynasty.

Lastly, the costume designer told me that Johnny Lee was actually on a lunch break. So she brought me to go meet him. When I first saw him, I was so nervous but I built up my confidence and waved at him. Then, I ran up to him and asked him for a photo. He was so nice and said yes! So in conclusion, it was the best day I ever had!

Hope to see you soon, Tom.

Love,
Jenny

5th April, 2032

Dear, Tom,

How are you? Two weeks ago I bought a CD and guess what? I got the golden ticket to go to the film studio. Awesome, right?

Yesterday I went to the studio. Before I went into the building, my mouth was already wide open because it was so grand! The tour guide said I could do whatever I wanted to do except go off limits. I asked "Even talk to the actors?" The tour guide actually said yes! I was so excited. I ran to the filming studio, but I didn't see the gigantic sign that said "off limits, no entry, go away, we don't want you here." I saw my favorite actor. I was about to say hi but a heard a "cut, what are you doing here?"

It was a guy with a camera. He was so angry you could practically see smoke coming out of him. The camera guy said "Go away, we- are- fil..."but then he ran out of air and choked. The costume designer came and escorted me out of the filming area, I thought she was going to yell at me but she was actually really kind.

The costume designer even let me try on some of the costume. My favorite costume was the Chinese clothing from the Qing Dynasty.

I was about to go home when my favorite actor John Cookie asked if I wanted an autograph. I couldn't speak, so I just nodded, then I said "Thanks." After that, I went home without a word.

To this day, I still can't believe I got that autograph. I bet its worth a lot, and I know it's worth a lot more to me. Did you know John is in 14 different movies? Hope to see you soon,

Love,
Jenny

Title: Lunch with Grandmother

Yesterday I went to a restaurant to have lunch with Grandma. We went to a restaurant that was as pretty as a picture. After we sat down, a friendly waiter greeted us and gave us each a menu. I said, 'I want cup noodles, please.' But then Grandma said, 'No, you may not have cup noodles, this is a restaurant, not a convenience store.' I ended up ordering a bowl of ramen noodles, Grandma ordered lemon tea and a bowl of ramen noodles.

As we were waiting for our food, Grandma and I talked about the news. We also talked about what was happening in the family. After that, Grandma told me a story about her great grandpa who lived in America, he was out hunting when he was chased by a bear.

I was so hungry I could eat a cow. I didn't notice that my handkerchief had fallen out of my purse. When the waiter was about to put our food on the table, he slipped on my handkerchief. The noodles went flying sky high, the soup landed all over Grandma. I was so shocked. I quickly got out of my chair and ran to Grandma. I was going to use my handkerchief until I saw it under the waiter's foot.

After everything was cleared up, I told the waiter that it was my fault and I apologized, but the waiter said he would be happy to get us another two bowls of ramen. Grandma and I thanked the kind waiter. When we finished, Grandma tipped the waiter, and then we left.

When I got home, I told Mum and Dad about everything that happened at lunch. The next day was a school day and I told my classmates about how nice the restaurant was. One of my classmates said what happened at the restaurant was something that only happens once in a blue moon.

I can't wait to go back to that restaurant.

Title: A hike

It was a sunny morning. John and his family went hiking in Tung Chung. They brought sunscreen, water bottles and towels in their bags. John's father also brought a camera to take photos of the animals or insects they had seen before. Everybody was excited. They were told that there was a waterfall on the mountain. John and his sister skipped along the way.

They came across a butterfly field. John's father bent down to take pictures and his wallet almost fell out of his pocket. He said, 'Oh no. I better not bend down or else it might fall out when I don't notice.' He put his wallet back inside his pocket. John and his sister kept pointing at the butterflies since they had never seen them before.

Soon, they came over the waterfall they had been waiting for. They all shouted. 'Hooray!' John's father quickly took pictures of the waterfall and the fish inside. He heard something drop into the water and he wanted to see what it was, but John came to him and asked, 'Dad, can we play in the water? It looks so clear.' 'No, it's dangerous.' replied John's father. 'Oh, can you take some photos with me?' suggested John. 'Well, okay.' replied John's father. He put his hand into his pocket and got his phone. 'I lost my wallet!' shouted John's father.

'What!' everyone else exclaimed. 'I can't find it.' said John's father. 'Let's calm down.' suggested John's mother. 'Let's find it.' 'Good idea.' John's dad replied. 'John and I are going to the butterfly field, you two try to find it here.'

A few minutes later, John and his dad returned. 'Didn't find it?' asked John's mother. 'Yes.' replied John's father. 'Sister! Stop!' shouted John suddenly. They saw John's sister was in the waterfall pool! John's father rushed to her and brought her onto a rock. She showed him his wallet, 'Wow! You found it!' John's mother asked. 'How did you know it was there?' 'I felt really bummed when we couldn't play in the water so I just stayed next to it and I saw your wallet floating!' Everyone was so proud of John's sister. They enjoyed the rest of their hike by having a picnic. They enjoyed the view with John's soaking wet sister. 'Wow, what a day!' said John.

Title: A letter to my cousin

Dear, Tom,

How have you been recently? I hope you're doing well.

Yesterday, something exciting happened! As you know, my dad works in a film studio, and since yesterday was a holiday for my school, he decided to bring me along with him to the film studio. I was over the moon because it was my first time going there.

When we arrived at the film studio, dad told me that I could take a look around while he was working. Not far away, I saw a person in a traditional clothing practicing martial art. I went nearer and realized that it was my favourite actor of all time. I was so excited that I kept jumping up and down.

Soon, it was time to shoot. I wanted to stay and watch, but the director was a grumpy man and shouted, 'Get this kid out of here!' The cameramen nodded and told me I was too disturbing. Then, a kind-looking woman with a warm smile patted my back and said, 'Little girl, why don't you come with me to the dressing room?' I followed her and we went to the dressing room.

There, she dressed me up in Chinese clothing from the Qing Dynasty. She introduced herself and told me, 'One of our background actors is under the weather, so I thought you could replace her for today.' I was overjoyed. Isn't she was such a nice lady?

We went back and the nice lady told the director her idea and he agreed. I was not only standing next to my favourite actor, I was also in his movie! After many shoots, we finally got the perfect scene. Turns out, being an actor is not easy. You can't give up easily during the shoot and you have to keep going! Don't you agree? At last, my idol actor took a picture with me and signed his autograph.

Going there was an unforgettable experience. I understood how a movie is made and got a chance to be in it! I heard the movie is coming out in August. Why don't we go and watch it at the cinema in August? I'd love to tell you more about what I learned!

Write back soon!

Love,
Jenny

Phew, the time flew by
Rather flew by at the speed of light
Every memory is worth more than gold
Curiosity is a much needed aspect
It's necessary for learning and growing
Often like a tree, growing, wilting and blooming
Until our teachers are like sunshine
Shining through us and giving us abilities

To the teachers

It's a delight to be under your care
Memories flood over our minds as if they are a waterfall
Every aspect of being in this school is a memory I won't forget
Seems like the wind blew the time from P.1 to our graduation

It's a pleasure every day we experience
Not all can understand, going back to school

Wish we could turn back time
Everything's going to be alright
It's all in our hearts and spirits

Love, hope and faith all streams in our veins
Until we all meet again
Nerveless, memories we will never forget

Title: A letter to my cousin

Dear Tom,

How are you? What have you been doing lately? I hope you're doing well.

Yesterday, I bought tickets to go to a meet-and-greet and see my favourite actor. I was very excited. However, I arrived a bit too early and saw the actor and filming crew filming an upcoming action movie. I couldn't help myself and decided to sneak in. I was amazed. I kept going closer and closer, then I realized I was in the camera!

The director yelled, 'Cut!' The staff asked me who I was. I quickly told them that I was here for the meet-and-greet. The cameraman and director told me that I was disturbing them. The costume designer decided to bring me to the dressing room because they are hiring a kid actor for the film.

Once I arrived in the dressing room, the costume designer gave me a traditional Chinese dress to try on. After putting it on, I had never felt so beautiful! The costume designer was glad it fit and that I liked it. She suggested I should wear that to take a picture with my favourite actor. I loved that idea so much.

Once they were done filming, I could finally take a picture with my favourite actor! He also signed my poster! I was over the moon.

I hope we can get together again and watch my favourite actor's new film! It would be so fun! Hope to see you soon!

Yours,
Jenny

Title: Lunch with Grandmother

Yesterday, I had lunch with my grandma. We went to our favourite restaurant. Long story short, it did not go as planned...

When we arrived at the restaurant, the waiter welcomed us. He brought us to our table and gave us our menus.

Once we sat down, we looked at our menus and read the choices. We both ordered the chicken noodle soup. Grandma also ordered a coffee for herself. We were ready to order. However, I got carried away and accidentally dropped my handkerchief without knowing!

After waiting for a while, the waitress finally came with our tasty food. I could smell the delicious aroma from the soup. Suddenly, the waitress tripped over the handkerchief that was on the floor! The tray flipped out of her hands. Both of the noodles spilled all over grandma!, Grandma screamed as loud as a drum. I was extremely shocked and worried. Grandma was as red as a tomato because of how hot the noodles were.

I quickly took off Grandma's jacket. I gave her some water to cool her down. The waitress was deeply sorry. Luckily, grandma's burn wasn't serious. However, grandma wanted to see the manager right away. The waitress told us that the manager wasn't here today. Therefore, we decided to leave the restaurant. Before we left, the waitress told us why she slipped. And it was because of my handkerchief! Grandma looked at me with an upset face. I felt so ashamed of myself.

After we left, grandma told me it was ok. We decided to go home and cook by ourselves. I also bought grandma a new jacket as an apology gift.

Title: A hike

John went on a hiking trip with his family. The weather was surprisingly pleasant and sunny. John found it surprising since it was raining cats and dogs three hours ago. He asked his parents, 'Where are we going?' 'Didn't daddy tell you? I thought he told us about going on a hiking trip in Sunshine Mountain,' John's younger sister Daisy shrugged and retorted. 'Oh, dad didn't tell me. Now I see.' said John. 'Why didn't you tell me but only my sister?' complained John. 'I wanted to keep it a surprise for you since it's your birthday, but apparently, Daisy already told you that,' replied John's dad and they kept walking.

After for what seemed like a few minutes, the family arrived at the moment. They were all awestruck by the breath-taking forest. Here and there were orange iridescent butterflies; there sat a beautiful, metallic blue dragonfly. The children pointed at the butterflies and admired them with glee. John's father knelt in front of a sunset-coloured butterfly with gold wingtips. It was resting serenely. Just then, John poked the fragile butterfly cheekily and the butterfly flew away in fear. John's father caught its action mid-air as it was flying. The picture kept all their memories – that picture was John's father's favourite. He shoved it in his wallet gently and continued admiring the plants.

They walked for a few moments until the children stopped in front of a waterfall. John's mother told them to keep on walking, but she softened when John begged her with sad puppy eyes. Daisy did the same and finally the parents let them lay in the water. 'But only for a little while,' John's dad gave in and replied reluctantly. The children hopped into the transparent, clean water and had water fights. Splash! John's father joined in since the children seemed like they were having a whale of time. The water was extremely cold for John's dad, so he jumped out of the water and shivered.

'I've lost my wallet!' screamed Dad. He frantically searched through his bag, pockets and even his hat! He whispered with sadness and cried, 'My ID, money and my precious photos of me!' 'Oh c'mon dad! We can scoop it out! Don't give up, we can try to find it for you!' replied Daisy.

The children attempted to try, but had no luck. 'Maybe dad lost it during the hiking trip!' said John. 'It's fine, I can recollect those items.' said John's dad finally, with a hint of sadness. They kept on going and enjoyed the trip. John's dad was disappointed for the rest of the day.

They hiked for several hours and went home. Today was a pleasant day indeed for the family even though John's dad lost his wallet.

Title: A hike

Last weekend, John and his family went hiking in Sai Kung since it was sunny that day. They were all very excited because it was their first time hiking together. When they got to Sai Kung, they walked along the path and felt relaxed. 'The weather is perfect today!' John's dad said. John looked around while walking and his dad brought a map so John's family wouldn't get lost. John's dad folded the map and put it in his wallet.

While John was walking, he stopped in front of a bush with pretty flowers 'Whoa! Look! There's a cute butterfly in the bush.' John's sister said. John's dad took a picture of the cute butterflies and they got back on the stone path and went straight.

When they got to their destination, they saw a beautiful waterfall, the water was clear and John felt a little breeze. 'Can we play in the water?' asked John's little sister. John's parents waved hands and turned their heads saying no because they thought it would be very dangerous.

When John's dad was about to take the map out of his wallet, he tried to find it in his pockets, but they were both empty. John and his family started worrying and searching everywhere and everything. But they still couldn't find it. But then, John's dad suddenly remembered he left his wallet on a rock when he was taking photos. He rushed back and got his wallet. The family was so happy and then they got back home safely.

Title: Lunch with Grandmother

Yesterday, my Grandma decided to invite me to have lunch with her at a new restaurant. When we got there, a waiter greeted us with a charming smile and gave us a menu. He pointed in the direction to our table and another waiter brought us there. I looked around the place while the waiter was bringing us to our table. It looked like a Japanese style restaurant, and I could already smell the delicious ramen noodles.

When we got to our seat, we sat down and started ordering immediately. I ordered a chicken noodle soup with ramen and my grandma ordered hot lemon tea and miso soup with noodles. We had to ring a little bell to let the waiters know when we needed help. But suddenly my towel slipped out of my pocket and I didn't realize it. 'Can I have a chicken noodle soup with ramen, lemon tea and miso soup with noodles please?' I said. The waiter said, 'Sure!' then he went into the kitchen.

After a while, our food was ready and I saw a waitress holding our food coming to our table. I was so excited because I had never tried this food before. As the waitress was coming closer to our table, she slipped on my towel and spilled the noodles and soup onto my grandma's arm. 'I'm so sorry!' the waitress said. My grandma had no expression, as if she didn't feel anything. I was right! Before coming to the restaurant, she put on a thick coat and it was water proof so the soup and noodles slipped off her coat and dropped onto the floor.

The waitress called a cleaning lady to clean up the mess she had made. The waitress was very embarrassed and her face was as red as a tomato. Later on, after the mess was gone, the manager of the restaurant came and gave me and my grandma both a VIP card so whenever we go to the restaurant, the food will be all free. Now, we always go there to have free food.
